CANDIDATES.

To the Independent Voters of the Town and County of Alexandria : - FELLOW CITIZENS .tinctly understood. Yielding to the solicitation resulting to the public interest by the selection of incompetent men, because of their connection with some dominant party, I determined to rest my claims upon your judgment, rather than upon the endorsement of either of the political parties now in existence. At the time I announced myself a candidate, my intention was to see as many of the voters as possible, but the position I now occupy precludes the possib lity of my seeing you in person, and I shall be compelled to rely upon your discrimination in the coming contest. If, in your judgment, the experience of thirty years of active commercial business, and a residence among you of over twenty years, entitle me to your support, I shall be thankful; and, if elected, will bring to the office the best of my ability in the discharge of its duties. The matter now rests with you, and in your decision I shall cheerfully acqui-ROBERT CRUPPER. esce my 12-eotE

To the Voters of Alexandria: - As some persons seem determined to misrepresent my position, and are still engaged in circulating the report that I have declined being a candidate for the Sheriffalty, I deem it due to myself to state, that such report (whether the offspring of "political trickery" or not,) is an unqualified falsehood-maliciously invented and secretly circulated, for the sole purpose of defeating my election. I now announce myselt a candidate, and pledge myself to do my whole duty, if elected. [mh 4-eo:E] JAMFS SANGSTER.

NO. 122. MISCELLANEOUS READING.

LINES-BY LIZZIE LINTON. Alone, alone, I sit and muse, In the dim twilight grey, While memory's gentle powers diffuse, Some lingering ray,

Softly, softly, come they stealing, . Shadowy phantoms of the past; Wildly, wildly, they are calling, And an echo comes at last

Some checker'd thoughts of by-gone days.

From the deep recesses of a ruined heart. Sadly, sadly, they are moaning, Sighing 'mid the autumn winds, Ghostly forms my spirit haunting,

That cluster 'round this moss grown heart of mine Lightly, lightly, as the dews of even, Falls some gently whisper'd tone. And an angel bending o'er me, "Weary mortal, sad and lone,"

Flitting 'mid the serried vines

"Why weep o'er youthful visions flown ?" Brightly, brightly, a star is rising, In the dim and clouded West. (Brighter hopes my bosom stiring.) Bids me calmly, sweetly rest, And woes me away to the land of the blest.

Prospect Hill, May 17th, 1858. TO MISS C .- A .- BY LILLIAN. Though joy may beam, though pleasure smile, And round my brow her roses twine,

Though 'midst the thoughtless throng, awhile, I may appear its mirth to join; Yet oft the starting, trembling tear, Shall tell that e'er in pleasure's sphere, When mirth and gaiety unite, To fill my bosom with delight, That every joy on earth is vain,

Unless we two shall meet again! And ah! perhaps in youth's bright morn, Dark grief may throw her shades of woe, And peace from me be rudely torn, And nought be left that charms me now;

Yet e'en in this dark hour of sorrow, A ray of joy from hope I'll borrow. And whilst she "waves her golden hair," And smiling points to prospects fair, I will not think her promise vain, But trust we two shall meet again! Alexandria, Va., May 17, 1858.

LAND INFESTED WITH SASAFRAS AND BRIERS. - Repeated cropping in corn, wheat, or oats, will but multiply these pests. The best plan to eradicate them, I have found (after many wined by the late Richard M. Scott, of Fairfax name to an intelligent and generous constituentation of the name to an intelligent and generous constituentation of May, and subjecting the land to close corn, so thickly set with eacufres and briers, that a friend remarked, that it afforded a good swarth nearly all over.
